RULES WHITE HOUSE

Col. Symons Chosen to Fill Important Social Post.

Military Aid to President Roosevelt and Master of Ceremonies—Was Appointed to West Point from Michigan.

The most picturesque office of our entire military establishment, in times of peace, is that just conferred by the president upon Maj. Thomas W. Symons, corps of the engineers, United States army. The prosaic title, "In charge of public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia," which this officer will bear after May 1, is no index to the courtly social prestige that he will enjoy. He will serve as master of white house ceremonies and as military aid to the president. Were our ostentatious government a monarchy he would have the title of "lord chamberlain."

Next to the president himself he will be the most conspicuous figure at the white house levees. Respondent in full-dress uniform and with a glistening dress sword at his side, his station during all such brilliant events will be in the blue parlor immediately at the president's left. Here he will formally present to the chief executive the long lines of guests. He will officiate as stage manager, so to speak, in all of the official and social dramas enacted within the presidential mansion. The music, the decorations, the comfort of the guests—all will fall within his supervision. He will have all of the practical responsibilities of the proprietor of a big hotel and the manager of a play combined.

As "military aid to the president" Maj. Symons will personally accompany President Roosevelt on all of his journeys of an official nature. During the review of troops or of processions he will stand at the president's side arrayed in full dress uniform. Hence his office will bring him into the most intimate personal contact with the chief executive and will demand relations of a very confidential kind. Therefore, appointment to this office is left to the president personally.

MAJ. THOMAS W. SYMONS.
(President Roosevelt's Newly-Appointed

Maj. Symons will be the disbursing officer of the white house and to him will be intrusted the lump sum which congress annually appropriates for the repair and maintenance of the mansion. Every year this allowance differs according to special demands. But Maj. Symons will handle larger sums than those put in the keeping of his predecessors, inasmuch as the recent rehabilitation of the mansion, which became necessary in order to give the presidential family ample sleeping room and the nation's guests the common comforts to which they are entitled in any gentleman's house, increases the cost of lighting and heating.

Maj. Symons is 54 years old. He was born in Keeseville, N. Y., within a few miles of Lake Champlain, but was appointed to West Point from Michigan.

He is a shining example of the good augury of school leadership, says the Detroit Free Press. He was a brilliant student at West Point, being graduated at the head of his class in 1874. Precision was his strong point from the start, and with such a temperament naturally followed mathematical genius. Leaving the military academy a lieutenant in the corps of engineers, he served at the torpedo and engineer school at Willet's Point until 1876. There he was detailed for duty in the western surveys, becoming chief engineer in the department of the Columbia three years later. He explored the wilds of Washington, located military posts, built roads and placated angry savages. As did the man he now comes to serve, he lived a strenuous life in the great west, and, like him, wrote a book on what he saw. During President Cleveland's first administration he had charge of the water supply, sewerage, pavements, streets, roads, bridges, lighting and car lines of the national capital. Then he took charge of the river and harbor work in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. Eight years ago he took up the same important task about Buffalo, where he has since been stationed. During the past four years he has been lecturing on engineering at Cornell. He made an exhaustive study of the problems of the proposed canal to connect the great lakes with New York harbor, and his report thereon won his appointment to the New York canal advisory board.

Washed Once Each Year.
Asked when he had last washed, a small boy told the Crediton, England, magistrates that he had a bath last summer. The father was ordered to prison for his neglect.

SENATOR REED SMOOTH

ONE OF THE MOST SUBSTANTIAL MEN IN THE WEST.

A Napoleon in Business—A Great State that Honors Her Son—Statesman and a Christian Gentleman—Ready to Grasp and Quick in Speech—An Interesting Talker—Loved by His People, Successful in Business, A Faithful Husband and a Loving Father—A Man who Recognizes Merit and Believes in Equality of Man.

Plutarch in writing the lives of eminent men, could not forecast and draw the pictures that Shakespeare dramatized as object lessons for coming ages. Plutarch put in narrative form the deeds and valor of soldiers, statesmen and politicians.

He had no favorites, hence the weakness as well as the merits and demerits of his subjects were not embellished with that artistic touch that painters give to the undeserving.

In comparing the men of greatness in this age to those in the time of Plutarch, we are confronted with a different type of men. The Bee, therefore presents to its readers and the world the man, whose religion is based upon principles that are peculiar to modern civilization, but not in conflict with the Federal Constitution, but a religion that recognizes Equality of manhood; a religion that believes in law and order, the advancement and promotion of government, as Abraham Lincoln once said, of, for and by the people.

HON. REED SMOOTH,
from the State of Utah, the Senator elect and who possesses many brilliant parts, in politics, religion and statesmanship and one of the successful in business, is a man whose portrait occupies the center of the front page of The Bee this week.

This distinguished man was born January 10, 1862, at Salt Lake City. He was educated at the State University and at the Brigham Young Academy. He is a graduate of the latter institution. He is a banker and woolen manufacturer. In 1884 he was married to Miss Alpha M. Aldredge.

To look in the face of Senator Smooth, without saying a word to him, he reminds you of an overgrown boy, but, the moment he opens his mouth and having talked with him a few seconds, he will soon convince you that he has a giant intellect and possesses business qualities more marvelous and startling than his advent in the Senate, which will be shown by the many great business enterprises in which he is now engaged in the state of Utah.

No man, unless he has the confidence, respect and support of a people could have risen to the height, eminence and dignity to which Senator Smooth has risen and being so young.

The people of Utah knew what they were doing when they elected a legislature that elected him to the Senate just as much as other State legislatures have done and do when they want a good man. Legislatures as a rule, elect their best men. They are not all alike, neither in politics nor religion. Why then should Senator Smooth be singled out because he differs from his opponents in religion?

If citizens should be encouraged to file protest against men who have been elected by their legislatures on account of their religion or political beliefs, what kind of a National Government would we have? If such acts were encouraged, not a Senator from the South would be permitted to hold his seat.

This age is too advanced. There is not a man in the United States that can point to that characterized the election of Mr. Smooth.

THE APOSTLE OF THE MORMON CHURCH

is from Provo City, Utah. He is one of the busiest men in this bustling little inland city. His name is connected with many of the leading industrial and commercial institutions of the community, besides being the most prominent Mormon residing in this part of the State. He is chiefly known abroad as an Apostle of the Mormon Church, but in his home city he has always been best known as one of her shrewdest and most successful business men.

He is President of the leading bank, manager of the Provo Woolen Mills, the largest in the West; heavily interested in the Smooth Investment Company, doing a lumber building and nourishing business, a partner in the leading coal business, founder and owner of electric lighting system of the city: promoter of a street railway director in the Salt Lake City & Los Angeles Railroad company, vice president and director of the Grand Central Mining Company, owning one of the richest mines, director of Desert National Bank, Deseret Bank Zions Cooperative Mercantile Institution, all leading Commercial institutions of the state Capital. It will therefore be readily seen that as an Apostle of the Mormon Church, his time is pretty well taken up in secular duties as well as spiritual duties.

Mr. Smooth says that the time given to his church is gratis, he has a delight in responding to the call of the President of his church to take preaching tours. He is busy usually each Sunday preaching in some part of the State, and is said to be very convincing and eloquent as an exponent of the doctrines. Mr. Smooth is of splendid physical proportions, taller by a head than most men, with a chest and muscular limbs common to mountaineers. He is of a nervous temperament, with a steady piercing gaze and readily answers questions put to him. He is in the prime of life. He will be a young looking Senator, but no more so than many others from the new Western States.

A man of such varied occupations and connected with so many gigantic enterprises and with a record that is so spotless, must possess the confidence of his people, and his acts must have been as philanthropic as he is a Christian. He must be of service to needy human. His love for his children is most affectionate.

He is a man who recognizes merit, wherever he finds it and above all which is characteristic of Mr. Smooth who is so dearly loved by the people of Utah, even those who differ with him in politics, he believes in Equality of man.

Having presented to the readers of The Bee one of the most substantial men in the West, a man of an unselfish disposition, liberal, honest, patriotic and religious, it must be admitted that shrewd and successful enterprises that give suffering humanity a livelihood must be perpetuated, to Senator Reed Smooth, the American people tender their congratulations on his election and their appreciation of what he is doing to advance their Christian civilization.

man, he must be a benefactor to the thousands that are employed in the enterprises in which he is engaged. There are men in the States of the United States, irrespective of politics, believe in fair play and will never give encouragement to demagoguery and religious hypocrisy. The American people have come to the conclusion that political protests are founded upon deception and selfishness.

They have faith in their legislative bodies and when their acts have to be reviewed by irresponsible individuals, and such reviews given encouragement by the National legislative bodies it is about time to abolish the great body.

The Utah Plain Dealer one of the leading journals in the State in speaking of Senator Smooth says: Hon. Reed Smooth has been seated in the United States Senate, and he is now enjoying the high office that has been bestowed upon him by a sovereign state, an honor that he is deserving of, and eminently qualified to fill with credit and dignity to the state and nation.

It can be said, too, that no senatorial election ever occurred in his state, that was attended with more cleanliness and void of strife and contention than this present one, and why, all the furore of excitement? And this is a trial and appeal for political crucifixion? Let us see about the wisdom of this dynasty, from whence came the attack that caused the agitation.

The "Ministerial Alliance" of this city were the originators of all the clamor, they are the unconquerable heroes of a local conflict, and, flushed with victory, became animat'd to meddle in national affairs; notwithstanding it was well known in every hamlet in the state, that the new Senator was an avowed candidate before the election.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and the sealing of Hon. Reed Smooth, without protest, amid the general signal applause, shows that a link has been broken, and the chain that was to be fastened around him was not strong but was weak.

In men whom men condemn as ill, we find so much goodness still; And in men whom men pronounce divine, We find so much sin and blot—that we hesitate to draw the line, where God has not.

HIS FAMILY TIES.

are most pleasant. He is married to one of the most accomplished ladies in the State. He has reared a family of six children and as a husband he is faithful and as a father he is most loving. He knows his duty as a husband and well performs it. His love for his children is most affectionate.

He is a man who recognizes merit, wherever he finds it and above all which is characteristic of Mr. Smooth who is so dearly loved by the people of Utah, even those who differ with him in politics, he believes in Equality of man.

Having presented to the readers of The Bee one of the most substantial men in the West, a man of an unselfish disposition, liberal, honest, patriotic and religious, it must be admitted that shrewd and successful enterprises that give suffering humanity a livelihood must be perpetuated, to Senator Reed Smooth, the American people tender their congratulations on his election and their appreciation of what he is doing to advance their Christian civilization.

18th verses. Before proceeding further it will be proper to refresh our memories with certain facts which we gather from ancient writers concerning the history of the Hebrew nation at the advent of Jesus. The Jews paid tribute to the Caesars, they recognized and tolerated three sects or denominations known to us as the Pharisees, Sadducees, and the Essenes.

The frequent denunciations in the new testament by Jesus against the Pharisees, Sadducees, and also the Scribes prove clearly that he (Jesus) had no respect for the Pharisees or Sadducees. The only sect remaining which Jesus could affiliate with were the Essenes (Masonic) to be continued.

HANNA THE MAN.

San Francisco Not yet Certain—Sentiment Growing for the Ohio Senator—The Bee in the West—Hanna the Man.

Dear Sir: I have been the fortunate recipient of the "Washington Bee" the issue of February 21st through a fellow townsmen and in pursuing it I notice very particularly where you express the belief that Senator Hanna and not President Roosevelt will be the nominee for the next Presidential candidate of the republican party. But you have not given the source of your belief, I am not opposing President Roosevelt nor am I advocating the candidacy of Senator Hanna, but I am very much inclined to think the same way you are thinking, and will give my reason for it. I shall now enumerate.

1. Mr. Roosevelt's attitude towards the Trusts who furnished the major portion of the campaign funds of which Mr. Hanna is a part.

2. Mr. Roosevelt stands in behalf of the negroes in regards to their holding public offices, no one on earth can convince me that three fourths of the American people of this country are in unit with President Roosevelt's action on this question. But like politicians, exercising diplomacy there are several phrases in the third and last statement I would like to comment on, but I fear my views might be misconstrued thereby given a wrong interpretation thereto. In conclusion however we will stand in solid phalanx who ever the standard Bearer is as will be dictated by the peoples representative in their national convention. To err is human, to forgive is divine. Yours in common for the good of the race.

POSTMASTER VICK REMOVED.

Lily Whiteism Triumphant. It was a question of Supremacy between Geo. H. White and Pritchard and his Lily Whiteism.

Well postmaster S. H. Vick has been removed a lily white appointed in his place. This is a triumph for lily whiteism headed by Senator Pritchard, and endorsed by President Roosevelt. It was not a question as to the fitness or unfitness of postmaster Vick, but whether lily white Pritchard, who wants to be district Judge should triumph over ex-Congressman Gen. H. White, the colored republican. The removal of postmaster Vick is one of the most outrageous and diabolical acts that has ever been perpetuated. The question now is, will the negroes of this country submit to such an act without a protest. Instead of the Pen and Pencil Club expressing gratitude to Bishop Ireland, let it extend its condemnation to the administration and to President Roosevelt. Well this is a triumph for lily whiteism. The Bee was always said that President Roosevelt was a party to the lily white movement in the South and he is as much responsible for the prejudice against the negro that exists in that section of the country. It is best that all negro office holders and office seekers keep their mouths and not falsely advise the colored voters in the United States.

He Thanked Them.

Arch-Bishop Ireland received at the Ebbitt House last Sunday a delegation composed of the members of the Pen and Pencil Club, representatives of the Negro press of the country, and other leading citizens, who called to express their gratitude and appreciation of his unwavering stand for human rights. Mr. W. L. Houston, Chairman of the Club's Governing Board, introduced the following members of the Club:

Henry P. Slaughter, president; Daniel Murray, William L. Pollard, Robert Cobb, S. E. Lacy, T. A. Johnson, F. M. Simons, A. U. Craig, J. Y. Goins, L. G. Gregory, L. M. Hershaw, Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Hon. J. P. Green, J. Cromwell, Andrew F. Hiley, Dr. W. Bruce Evans, Principal of Armstrong Manual Training School, and Mr. Fred Pelham Barrier, of Detroit, Mich.

Remarks expressive of the gratitude of the race were made by H. P. Slaughter, President of the Club, L. M. Hershaw, John P. Green and Hon. Judson W. Lyons, to which the Arch-Bishop responded briefly thanking the gentlemen for the visit.

HON. S. H. VICK REMOVED.

Hon. S. H. Vick has been removed and the man appointed in his place never claimed to be a republican, but has boasted of what he has done to the negro, and he never voted in Wilson, County.

AN EDISON FAILURE.

Once He Designed an Invention That Didn't Work.

Automatic Horse Feeder Was Operated Just Once, with Results That Discouraged the Wizard and His Factotum.

"The world has seen a variety of achievements wrought by man, but no other has made such strides toward the perfection of industry and progress, toward the advancement of the whole world, as the application of electricity."

Thus spoke Lord Kelvin, and in justice he might have supplemented the same by stating that the Yankee wizard, Thomas A. Edison, has ever been the leader in the advance guard which has with such signal success explored that mystical electrical field. However, the public prints have long been surfeited with stories of Edison's brilliant coups; and here, for variety's sake, is given the record of a failure.

When Edison first established his laboratory and electrical works over in New Jersey, he had in his employ an Irishman named Barney Gilhooley. Barney was engineer and fireman—in short, he was general utility man around the entire Edison plant. He lived back of the meadows, some four miles from the factory, and it was his custom to drive daily back and forth.

Now, like all the rest of mankind, Barney liked to sleep in the morning as long as possible, and he conjured his brain as to how to feed his horse in the morning without a personal visit to the barn. Finally he enlisted the services of his illustrious employer, explaining that it would be a great convenience if by some button and wire arrangement the morning ration of oats could be doled out to the horse. In that way he claimed that when he had prepared and eaten his own breakfast Dobbin also would be ready for the road.

Mr. Edison readily grasped the idea, says the New York Times, and that very day, accompanied by an assistant, he repaired to Barney's place and installed an electrical appliance which he anticipated would fill the bill. It was so arranged that if the oats were placed in a receptacle at the top of a chute, the pressing of a button at the house would put machinery in motion to do the rest.

THOMAS A. EDISON.
(As an Inventor of a Self-Feeder the Wizard Was a Failure.)

And so it came to pass that on the morning of the automatic oatfeeder's debut Barney pushed the magical button, serene in the belief that the Wizard's mechanism would fulfill its mission.

But, alas! the best laid plans of electricians, as well as those of other folk, "a

WAS BORN IN CHICAGO.

Graeme Stewart, Republican Candidate for Mayor, is a True Son of the Windy City.

Graeme Stewart, republican nominee for mayor, is a native of Chicago and is 49 years old. He was born August 30, 1853, at Franklin and Monroe streets. He received his education in the Skinner school, then at Aberdeen and Jackson streets; the University of Chicago and Dryden's Hande Schule, which stood at Randolph street and Fifth avenue, then Wells street.

His first employment was as errand boy for G. W. Flanders and Co., for which firm he subsequently worked as shipping clerk. He was next employed by Stewart, Aldrich & Co. as salesman. In 1880 he entered the service of the W. M. Hoyt company, and by untiring and efficient work finally became a director and partner in the firm.

On the night of the great fire in 1871 Mr. Stewart was the last person to cross the Rush street bridge. He drove across the structure in a buggy, hauling the books of his employers which he had saved from the flames.

In 1874 Mr. Stewart was one of the organizers of the First Illinois regiment and captain of company A. In 1882 Mayor Harrison appointed him a member of the board of education and he served in that capacity six years.

As a successor to T. N. Jamieson Mr. Stewart was elected a member of the national republican committee in 1900 and was associated with Mark Hanna, Henry C. Payne, Harry New and R. C. Kerens in the financial management of the campaign of that year.

Two years ago Mr. Stewart was mentioned for the mayoral nomination, but did not sanction the use of his name in that connection.

Mr. Stewart married Nellie Pullman in 1879. Two children add to the happiness of the Stewart home at 181 Lincoln Park boulevard.

His repertoire includes all the old-time favorites, such as "The Arkansas Traveler," "Turkey in the Straw," "Old Dan Tucker," "Fisher's Hornpipe" and "Pop, Goes the Weasel." In addition to his musical accomplishments Riley dances lively jigs with all the nimble grace of an Irishman, and, though 75, he challenges any man in Pennsylvania over 50 to a jig-dancing contest.

"And I'll do my own fiddlin', sure," says Riley, for he can fiddle and at the same time dance to his own music.

Riley is a native of Lancaster county. He served in the First Pennsylvania volunteers and in the Two Hundred and Third Pennsylvania volunteers and was twice dangerously wounded in battle.

Whiskey $1.10 Per Gallon.

We claim to be the LOWEST PRICED WHISKEY HOUSE. We sell whiskey as low as $1.10 per gallon, and mind you; distilled whiskey—not a decoction of chemicals—but of course it's new and under proof.

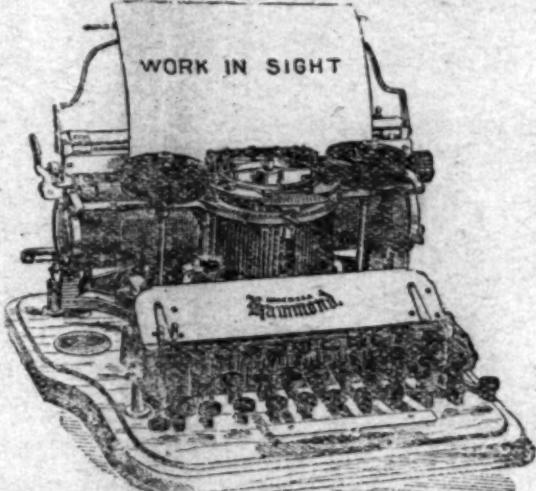

"CASPER'S STANDARD" 10 Year old whiskey is a liquid joy! It is actually produced by honest Tar Heels in the Mountain Section of North Carolina by the old time process. Every drop is boiled over open furnace wood fires, in old style copper stills, in exactly the same way it was made by your grandfathers a century ago. First rate whiskey is sold at $5 to $6 per gallon, but it is not any better than "CASPER'S STANDARD." It is the best produced and must be every customer or we will buy it back with gold—we are incorporated Under the Laws of North Carolina, with an authorized capital of $100,000.00 and the Peoples National Bank and Piedmont Savings Bank of Winston-Salem, N. THE WASHINGTON BE

HAD WRONG POCKET.

Awful Mistake of the Pretty Girl in the Automobile Coat in a Chicago Street Car.

A pretty girl wearing an automobile coat that reached to her heels stepped aboard an Indiana avenue electric car at Thirty-first street the other day, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and took the only remaining seat, which was next to a man bundled in a great ulster. The atmosphere in the car was rather frigid, and the young woman felt about for her coat pockets, and finally shoved her hands deep down into the folds of the garment.

An instant later she felt a large gloved hand steal inside the pocket

"PARDON ME, MISS."

It closed upon her own hand and gently pressed it. The pretty girl was enraged, and turned upon the man at her side.

The car was crowded with passengers, and she did not wish to create a scene. She bit her lip, straightened up, and looked directly ahead. Again the hand closed gently upon her own. She gave her arm a quick jerk and withdrew her hand from the pocket. The man, not the least abashed, also withdrew his hand.

Her fingers soon began tingling with cold and she slipped her hand into the pocket again. While she sat shivering she again felt a large gloved hand steal into the pocket. For a moment she sat quietly, and then the hand once more pressed her own. She would endure such a flirtation no longer. She thrust her hand deeper into the pocket and faced the man.

"Take your hand out of my pocket, sir," she said, in a fierce voice.

"Pardon me, miss," said the man, "but will you be so kind as to take your hand out of my pocket?"

The young woman looked surprised, and with a jerk withdrew her hand. When she saw she had confused the folds of the two coats she blushed, signaled the conductor to stop the car, and fled toward the door. When the car stopped she stepped to the street, without even turning to give the man an apologetic glance.

BEAR KILLS HIMSELF.

After Hammering His Head Against His Cage He Commits Suicide by Drowning.

Old "Choctaw Jack," the big black bear of the Dallas zoo at Dallas, Tex., committed suicide the other morning. After beating his head against the stone walls of his cage and tearing himself with his claws he deliberately plunged into a large water tank, placed his head under the water and stubbornly held it there until he had drowned.

Old Jack was undoubtedly insane. For a dozen years he had lived with his wife, "Queenie Choctaw," and several litters of cubs were born to them. Two years ago the last litter of cubs—four in number—was born. Jack suddenly changed his nature, and when the four little ones were two days old he ate them.

About a year ago, in what was regarded as a fit of anger, Jack attacked Queenie in the night and beat and lacerated her until she was helpless. The keeper arrived just in time to see Jack push Queenie into the water tank and hold her head under the water until he had drowned her.

Jack had been sullen, snarly and generally unpleasant ever since.

A MAID OF MUSCLE.

Woman Teacher Gives Football Player a Bloody Nose and His Mate a Black Eye.

Miss Mary L. Rogers, of Pawtucket, R. I., a graduate of Wellesley, recently punched the six-foot captain of the high school football team in the nose so hard that the blood came and thumped another youth of the same class with such vigor that the young man went home to his parents with his right eye blackened.

It all came about because Miss Rogers was a "new" teacher. It was her first day with the high school class and the evidence at hand tends to show that the brawny youths of the class thought it eminently proper to have fun with her. The captain of the football team, who got a bloody nose as a result of his encounter with the new teacher, is George McNeil. He weighs 180 pounds. The boy who got the black eye is William Campbell, five feet seven inches tall and weighs 140 pounds.

The school committee is investigating the affair. Here is what Miss Rogers said about the affair:

"It was all a matter of school discipline. The continued disobedience, impertinence and remarks which I considered improper were the cause of it all. It was my first day as teacher in the high school, and it soon occurred to me that things were at loose ends so far as respect toward me was concerned.

"It may be that the measures taken to demonstrate that I would maintain discipline were somewhat drastic, but what I did was entirely justifiable. I regret that the matter must become public, but as long as it must the facts will be stated and I believe that it will have a good effect. If it will result in better discipline it will be something accomplished."

MOSE LOST THE JOB.

Simply Because He Didn't Know That Felo de Se Was the Latin Term for Suicide.

Mose Jackson (colored), of Old River, Ark., is highly indignant because he was refused an appointment as justice of the peace the other day and a white man selected in his place.

All the trouble was due to Mose's ignorance of Latin. The man who got the place was equally ignorant, but he didn't display his lack of learning.

When the circuit judge of the county called at Old River to hold the ex-

"I want to ask you, Mr. Jackson," began the judge, "what you would do if you were a justice of the peace and a case of felo de se were brought before you?"

Mose didn't recognize the Latin term for suicide, and he scratched his head and pondered long and earnestly. He was bound he wouldn't give himself away, at any rate. So, after duly considering the proposition from all sides, he said:

"Well, judge, it's my opinion that I'd make the defendant pay alimony." The judge immediately dismissed Mose and put the same question to the white man.

"If such a case was brought before me," said the white man, "I'd order a change of venue for lack of jurisdiction." And that's why he got the appointment.

Tuskegee and its Methods.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Tuskegee Student, also the twenty first annual report of the Principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. To the first of these publications we are indebted to the surprising information that the above named institution has graduated during the course of twenty years, but 585 students. To the latter publication we are obligated for the news that large sums have been contributed by the whites, as the result of a system of professional begging for the support of this institute and to our mind with far from satisfactory results. In his report for the year ending May 31, 1902, Booker Washington makes the statement, touching the financial condition of his school that there have been received into the treasury from all sources since the report of 1901, $341,401.09 of which $126,864.29 have been used for current expenses and $150,208.95 for the permanent improvement of the plant; that the endowment fund is now $299,759 placed in the hands of four white business men in New York for investment and that the present most urgent needs are more buildings to cost $107,000, to say nothing of a larger endowment fund which is claimed to be now much to small. The report also states that the "number of students enrolled this year has been 1384" and that "112 officers and teachers and assistants of various kinds have been employed." Pursuing the report and in answer to the question as to what the graduates do after leaving the school, Mr. Washington points to three instances. The first is where one goes off and establishes a school like that of Tuskegee, the second is the case of a blacksmith who borrowed the money on which to start and who now owns a home containing four rooms, while the third and last case is where a graduate after a few years has become the owner of a farm of 112 acres, cultivated by himself and family. In this connection it is but fair to state that this farmer has built a small sugar house for boiling syrup for his own consumption, indicating that the land is in all probability a swamp land suitable for cane raising.

The report goes on to say that hundreds of such examples could be cited. We do not know how much money has been already expended in the construction of necessary buildings and in paying teachers for the work of grinding out 585 graduates in twenty years or less than an average of 30 graduates a year, but we have every reason to believe that the sum is enormous. We only know that $341,401.09 have been collected since my last report which is of course one year and that there is now an endowment fund of $299,759.02 which the report says is much too small. In explaining the sources of this year's vast contributors, Washington is proud to announce as an evidence of the growing friendship of the southern whites that one man contributed $500 and another gave $1000! Although claiming to teach 50 different trades and in industries, yet the principal states in his report that more and more is it to be the policy of the institution to emphasize training in all forms of agriculture. Now we are not inclined to quarrel with Washington or his hirelings about his school. We are however inclined to express the belief that three hundred and fifty thousand dollars including the profit arising from a wise investment of the present endowment fund constitute a very large sum, to be begged annually and in the name of the race for an institution whose history for twenty years can furnish no better output of graduates than thirty annually. It indicated a mighty poor investment when we consider that out of 585 graduates, the report shows but three or two of which are insignificant and can be done by hundreds of colored people who never saw the inside of a school house and never heard of Tuskegee. Moreover Washington is at the head of an association whose object is to stimulate interest in business and organize those in business who have proven their business capacity as well as to secure data for use of the race. This association is represented at the race thing and its promoters all that deserve. Why, we ask, has not Washington used his endeavors to have one of his own race selected to assist the white business men to invest this enormous endowment fund? Can not the race furnish one colored man of sufficient honesty and business capacity to assist in the wise investment of an endowment of which colored people are the beneficiaries? We are grateful for the report. The facts are to us truly alarming.

THE SENATOR FROM UTAH.

It is with pleasure that The Bee can present to its readers the portrait of the well known Senator from the state of Utah, Hon. Reed Smoot, who was almost unanimously elected by the legislature. The readers of The Bee can readily see that he is a man of wonderful injunty and business qualities. Senator Smoot is a young man, as it will be seen and one who is a benefactor to the people of his State. A man who is so useful in his State to the people, will be as useful to the nation in the Senate. Already Senator Smoot has won the respect and confidence of the Senate by his gentlemanly and dignified deportment. There is no man in the Senate who is any more respected than Senator Smoot, and there is no man in this country who is engaged in more successful business enterprises. He has won the respect of the administration by his manly course and equally respected by the entire United States Senate. Who knows what other honors will be bestowed upon Senator Smoot. A man who is so successful with his own enterprise can certainly be trusted with the nation's interests. There is a great deal to learn from the life of Senator Smoot. Men must be honest to retain the confidence of their people and to obtain their support. Senator Smoot started from an office boy and steadily and persistently pushed his way upward and onward and to day he occupies a leading position in the legislative branch of the national government. Having thus installed himself in the hearts of his associates in the Senate, there is every reason to believe that he will have the support in carrying out any measure that will promote and advance his state and the nation.

Pritchard Wants to be Judge.

President Roosevelt has promised to appoint ex-Senator Pritchard of North Carolina, the leader of the Lily white movement as judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. If he is appointed it will be over the protests of the ten millions of negroes in the United States and the bar of the District of Columbia. If President Roosevelt can appoint a man like Senator Pritchard as Judge he will be giving his approval of the Lily white movement in the South. Of course there will be a few negro "Judas Iscariots" among the negro members of the bar who will secretly get a few cowards to endorse Pritchard pretending that it is the negro bar association. Th negro bar association will not endorse the lily white leader for the judgeship of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Theodore Roosevelt, will never be elected president of the United States to succeed himself.

Dr. Crum has been appointed.

Certainly postmaster Vick should be retained.

The republican voters in the North will watch the President's actions with interest.

Senator Hanna is not in need of the vice presidency. The people will put him in a higher place.

Major Dick will succeed Senator Hanna in the Senate after the Senator has been nominated for president.

It is not a question whether Mr. Vick supported ex-Senator Pritchard, as it is whether ex-Congressman White should win. Should Mr. Vick be sacrificed by such subterfuge?

There are some journals edited by negroes, now declaring that Col. James Hill of Mississippi is a deposited and disgruntled collector. Col. Hill has cause to be disgruntled when a negro democrat has been appointed to succeed him.

Negro policemen are getting like the other officers on the force. They have not commenced to rob and steal as yet.

Major Sylvester has done all in his power to have an honest force, he certainly cannot control the mind of his men, if they are inclined to go wrong.

The attorney General will be called upon shortly to appoint two judges of the police court.

The people of the District are in need of a delegate in Congress. There is no reason why they should not have one.

The Board of Education should be abolished. It is a dead expense to the people. Have the public schools improved any?

There is no reason why a well educated colored man should not be appointed president of Howard University. Prof. James M. Gregory is able to secure as much money for Howard University as any other man.

Mysterious murders are becoming prevalent in the states and cities. Certainly our police department cannot do any more than other police departments. Let Congress give Major Sylvester more money.

The Bee does not want to see a democrat succeed any good republi in the district attorney's office.

There is one thing the democratic party will do when it gets in power. Democrats will succeed republicans.

The Bee wants to see "jim crow" sections abolished in the theaters in this city. All theaters colonize and notwithstanding the fact that you purchase a ticket for some decent part of the theater, your ticket is taken from you and exchanged for the colored.

The way to destroy the color line in any enterprise is to have enterprises of your own.

The local straddle-back stabbed its ex-editor in the back some few weeks ago. Mr. Thompson was a slave for his master for which he received no thanks. Every dog has his day Thompson. The Bee sympathizes with you, in the hour of deportation. Necessity, sometimes causes us to do that which is against our will.

Ex Congressman Mercer was disappointed in not being appointed Census director. Mr. Mercer will have his rising soon, provided still water ceases to Bee.

The straddle back has retired and is again effected with a bleeding spell. The ex recorder was betrayed by it, and The Bee has letters to show.

Senator Pritchard is no fool and when he gives a man a stick to break his head, he will know it. The Commerce department is not in need of colored help at present.

The so-called negro leaders under this administration are the biggest cowards that ever laid claim to negro leadership. You can't get one to talk above a whisper. Unhappy is the man, who depends on an office or a living.

ROSE FROM THE RANKS.

Gen. Randolph, Chief of Artillery Service, Enlisted as a Private Early in 1861.

Gen. Wallace F. Randolph, chief of artillery, whose name has just been added to the list of brigadier generals in the regular army, is a striking illustration of the possibilities of American citizenship. Like Maj. Gens. Young, Wheaton, Hughes and Davis and Brig. Gens. Randall, Kobb, Wint and Jesse M. Lee and several other high-ranking officers, Gen. Randolph began his military career as a volunteer in the ranks of the union army during the war and won his star by merit and pure soldierly qualities. He was born in Pennsylvania and enlisted as a private in the Seventeenth Pennsylvania infantry in April, 1861, and was soon appointed second Lieutenant of the Fifth artillery. He was breveted captain in June, 1863, for gallant services in the defense of Winchester, Va., and major in 1865, for good conduct and gallant services during the war. While in the field in Virginia in 1863 his battery was captured and he, being wounded, was made prisoner and taken to Richmond.

In February, 1864, he effected his escape and reached the federal lines at Williamsburg. He was with his regiment in Pennsylvania during the labor strikes in 1877, and in October, 1880, he went abroad on the training ship Saratoga, acquiring professional information. During the labor troubles in Chicago in 1894 he had command of the artillery battalion ordered to that city. He became colonel of the First artillery by regular promotion in October, 1899, and served as a brigadier general of volunteers during the Spanish-American war.

In the reorganization of the artillery arm in March, 1901, he was made chief of artillery and rendered excellent service in improving the efficiency of that branch of the service. Notwithstanding his increased command and responsibilities, he was continued in the rank of colonel, until the passage of the act creating the general staff of the army, which provided among other things that the chief of artillery should serve as a member of that body and have the rank, pay and allowances of a brigadier general.

The efficiency record shows him to be an able and zealous artillery officer.

REDUCE YOUR FLESH.

If You Follow Directions Here Given You Can Do It.

Sylvester J. Simon, Physical Culture Expert, Explains How to Bring About Normal Development at Home.

Every-day physical exercise as a means for reducing flesh or bringing about normal development is becoming more popular. The physician who can restore health is giving way to the system by which health can be preserved. No man or woman is healthy who is carrying around an abdomen out of proportion to the rest of the body. Physical culture shows that this disfigurement may be made to disappear with exercise, if conducted to well-defined rules. While the abdomen and weight are being reduced, the chest is being built out.

Why people will persist in remaining objects of ridicule and physically degenerating all the time, when the remedy is within their power, is a mystery, writes Sylvester J. Simon, in the Chicago Journal. Instead of puffing and blowing after a short run, or a quick walk, the fat man or woman who takes the following course of exercise regularly will find a great improvement in wind capacity, and able to keep up with their athletic friends.

Fig. 1 illustrates one of the best exercises for reducing abdominal flesh. Stand on one foot; raise one of the legs and grasp the knee, pressing the leg firmly against the front of the body. Repeat the exercise, holding the other leg. Continue until tired.

Fig. 2 shows an exercise that must be taken gently at first, and afterward indulged in more violently. Lie on the back, letting the body fall perfectly straight. Then elevate the legs and upper part of the body and grasp both knees with the arms, pressing the whole body into as small a compass as possible. This will give exercise to the parts to be reduced and be followed by a gradual disappearance of the adipose tissue.

Fig. 3 shows an exercise that will at first be difficult in extreme cases of obesity. Lie flat on the back, placing the feet beneath a sofa, so as to hold them to the door. Clasp the hands back of the head and then raise the trunk to an upright position, then back again to a flat position. Repeat five to ten times. This exercise brings all the muscles of the abdomen into play.

Another good exercise for reducing flesh is to lie down on the back and then raise the legs alternately to a perpendicular position, dropping them slowly into the first position. The exercise may be continued by raising and lowering both legs at once.

The efficacy of the above movements has been often tested, and in every case where the exercise has been regularly and carefully taken the result has been beneficial to the general health and to a great reduction in waist girth.

Without an adequate supply of fresh air no person can be healthy, and without a good chest expansion it is impossible to reach full development. Before men drifted into an artificial mode of living, their necessities compelled an out-of-door life, with great physical efforts, that gave perfect specimens of physical manhood. Now, the majority must fall back on the gymnasium, or home efforts, in order to keep in good condition. But although the breath of life is free to all, the narrow-chested, weak-lunged are legion, because they have not paid sufficient attention to the dictates of nature.

Every man and woman should have a good, full chest. This can be achieved, but it must be at the price of everything that is worth having—hard labor. Cursory exercise will not do.

First the pupil must learn to breathe deeply and exhale slowly, while keeping the body in an erect posture, with head well up, and chest thrown out. While walking in the open air pay particular attention to breathing exercises, and you will get all the benefit of exercise and pure air.

No apparatus of any sort is required.

SUPPLIED OCULAR PROOF.

How a Resourceful Missouri Lawyer Easily Won Over the Jury in a Slander Case.

"Resourcefulness in a lawyer in the actual trial of a case is as necessary as the same quality in a general on a battlefield," said Representative Champ Clark. "I saw my old law partner, ex-Lieut. Gov. David A. Ball, gain a slander case once under difficult circumstances—as it were, snatch victory from the jaws of defeat.

"Ball had for a client a wizened-faced, shambling, wild-eyed old tie-chopper named Sam Barnes, sly as a rascal and short of stature. A fat, stocky, 200-pounder named Zach Boothe had accused Barnes of stealing his bacon, and had forced Barnes in his own cabin in the presence of his wife and children, to hold out his foot for measurement to see if it would fit certain suspicious tracks.

"Barnes was poor as Job's turkey, but Ball is a sort of heaven-appointed attorney general or the poor. They are always with him, both in court and at the polls. Consequently, Barnes went to Ball with his bleeding heart and shattered reputation straight as a bird could fly.

"On the witness stand Boothe swore that the reason he knew that Barnes stole the meat was that the thief entered the smoke house through a window 10 by 16 inches, where two 8 by 10 panes had been broken out, and that Barnes was the only man in the neighborhood small enough to get through that hole.

"The jury scowled on Barnes and smiled on Boothe, and Boothe beamed oleaginous on everybody. He metaphorically patted himself on the back as a sure winner. But a change came over the spirit of his dream very suddenly. Ball had heard that he was going to swear that way, and was laying for him.

"While Boothe was in the midst of his self-congratulatory grinning Ball yanked a window sash 10 by 16 from under the table, and before Boothe, the court or anybody else knew what he was up to, he had slipped that sash over Boothe's head, and it dropped off his broad shoulders and round 'abdome with 'fat' capon lined' to the floor.

"Then he asked a juror, who was six feet four inches high, to stand up, and he passed him through that sash. The demonstration was complete and his triumph assured. He had furnished the jury what Othello demanded of Iago—"the ocular proof." The jury caught on and transferred their smiles to Barnes and their scowls to Boothe. All the sheriffs ever commissioned couldn't have kept that crowd from cheering, and Barnes was awarded substantial damages."

REMAINS OF SMITHSON.

Many Reasons Why They Should Be Interred in the Capital City of the Nation.

No little interest has been awakened at Washington, D. C., by the news which has come from Genoa, Italy, to the effect that James Smithson, the founder of the Smithsonian institution, is about to be turned out of his grave there to make room for a quarry.

No sooner had this word been received here than the question was raised: "Why should not the United States government bring the body to this country and give the great scientist a permanent resting place in the grounds of the institution which he founded?" The very justice of the proposition almost warrants one in regarding it as a foregone conclusion that this step will be taken. The country is justly proud of the Smithsonian institution, and if the funds at the disposal of the directors are insufficient to accomplish what is now proposed it is highly probable that congress will be asked to make an adequate appropriation. Washington should be proud to contain the tomb of James Smithson.

While scientists all over the country are interesting themselves in this question, the Washington papers and the issues of Science are printing letters from all sorts of people urging that the country to which Smithson left his entire fortune "to promote the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men" should show itself grateful. A letter from Gilbert H. Grosvenor closes with the words: "He left no descendants to care for his remains; let us accept them as a sacred trust and bring them to the United States to be deposited with all reverence in the institution which bears his name."

Smithson died in Genoa on the 27th of June, 1829, at the age of 75. By the terms of his will his property of about $600,000 was left to his nephew, then to revert to the nephew's sons, with the further provision that if he should die childless the fund should be used to endow just such an institution as now exists. The gift was accepted by act of congress in 1836, but it was ten years later before the institution was actually founded. In 1867 the fund was increased to $1,000,000 by congress.

GOVERNOR GARVIN.

Rhode Island's Chief Executive Is Mr. Bryan's Choice for the Presidential Nomination.

Dr. Lucius F. C. Garvin, governor of Rhode Island, who has been suggested by Mr. Bryan as good democratic presidential timber, was the only democrat candidate to be elected governor last fall north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi. He is extremely popular in his state, and in the course of 26 years, during which he has been more or less in politics, he has served in the legislature many times when he was about the only democrat in that body. Dr. Garvin is a single tax apostle, an aggressive friend of organized labor and a democrat of the southern school. He was born in Tennessee 62 years ago, served through the civil war in the Fifty-first Massachusetts volunteers, and has accumulated a comfortable fortune as a practitioner of medicine. He was defeated once for governor and twice for congress.

PHILIPPINE DWARFS.

They Are a Curious Pair and Their Combined Height Does Not Exceed 40 Inches.

Out in the Philippines a curious pair of dwarfs have been found whose combined height is something less than 40 inches. These little persons have attained their full growth, and but for the size of their heads are perfectly proportioned.

The woman is 20 years old and towers to a height of 19 inches. The other member of this remarkable combination, who is her brother, is 20 years old. The man wears a 7½ hat.

The pair were born in the Island of Panay, and since their earliest childhood, says the New York Herald, have earned a very comfortable income by exhibiting themselves in the theaters and museums throughout the Philippine islands. They are decidedly accomplished in their way. They can both sing and dance acceptably, and give several "turns," which are highly appreciated by the Filipino audiences.

Mr. Heyburn and Slim Mr. Ankeny Will Be Striking Figures

in the Senate.

Two of the most striking figures in the senate will be W. B. Heyburn, of Idaho, and Levi Ankeny, of the state of Washington. Mr. Heyburn is enormously fat. Mr. Ankeny is tall and very slender. Mr. Heyburn is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 329 pounds. Mr. Ankeny is 6 feet 2 and weighs 185.

Mr. Heyburn has lived more in the state of Washington than in Idaho, has made the bulk of his fortune in the practice of law in that state and keeps his principal law office in Spokane.

Mr. Ankeny has lived as in Idaho as in Washington, and accumulated his vast fortune mainly through the mercantile trade he has built up in Idaho after 40 years of effort.

Mr. Heyburn is noted as one of the gourmets of the Pacific coast region. Mr. Ankeny is noted as one of the sparest eaters in the same country.

It is related by eye-witnesses that Mr. Heyburn has been known to eat five plates of soup, four dozen oysters, three porterhouse steaks, a half gallon of ice-cream and two pies at a single sitting, and that, too, after midnight, to say nothing of the vegetables and other "fillings" that go with such a meal. His girth is more than 60 inches; his chest measurement is about the same.

There is no chair in the senate chamber that Mr. Heyburn can sit in, and Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell will soon be called upon to have the special chair now occupied by Senator Mason, of Illinois, enlarged to conform to the more amply availed-upon of the gentleman from Idaho.

Mr. Ankeny is known as the Russell Sage of the Pacific coast. He commands more ready cash than any other capitalist in that region. He is the chief stockholder in more than 20 banks scattered throughout Washington, Idaho and Oregon, and in 48 hours could mass $3,000,000 in any of these banks to his own credit.

THE ACRE DISPUTE.

South American Squabble to Be Settled by Arbitration, at the Request of Bolivia.

Brazil demanded some months ago that Bolivia rescind its contracts with the rubber syndicate, a New Jersey corporation, to which it had granted financial, industrial and police control of Acre. The contract, Brazil declared, was beyond the power of the Bolivian government to make, as it involved the partial surrender of sovereignty, and was void because it disposed of territory part of which was claimed by Peru, and part by Brazil. In the event of refusal to break the whole contract Brazil insisted that the agreement to permit the syndicate to maintain a police force be annulled. Bolivia refused to grant either demand. While these negotiations were in progress, a revolution was started in Acre by men who sought to make the district independent. They were assisted by the Brazilians. Bolivian troops were sent into the district January 20th to suppress the insurrection, and on January 26th Brazil announced that it had decided to concentrate troops in the adjoining states of Matto Grosso and Amazonas. The reason given by Brazil for its interest in the contract with the syndicate is that the establishment of so strong an American company in the interior of South America would endanger the surrounding republics. The United States has been requested by Bolivia to exercise its good offices to restore amicable relations between that country and Brazil, and independent negotiations are also in progress for the settlement of the dispute by arbitration.

Spectacle of a Lifetime.

A brilliant and startling spectacle was witnessed a short time ago in a Tyrolean valley near Tanneheim. A violent storm arose suddenly, and several globes of lightning rolled over the surface of the lake. Then a column of water arose 30 feet high from the middle of the lake, and from its top small flashes darted. The spectacle lasted about three minutes.

Mr. Heyburn and Slim Mr. Ankeny Will Be Striking Figures

in the Senate.

Two of the most striking figures in the senate will be W. B. Heyburn, of Idaho, and Levi Ankeny, of the state of Washington. Mr. Heyburn is enormously fat. Mr. Ankeny is tall and very slender. Mr. Heyburn is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 329 pounds. Mr. Ankeny is 6 feet 2 and weighs 185.

Mr. Heyburn has lived more in the state of Washington than in Idaho, has made the bulk of his fortune in the practice of law in that state and keeps his principal law office in Spokane.

Mr. Ankeny has lived as in Idaho as in Washington, and accumulated his vast fortune mainly through the mercantile trade he has built up in Idaho after 40 years of effort.

Mr. Heyburn is noted as one of the gourmets of the Pacific coast region. Mr. Ankeny is noted as one of the sparest eaters in the same country.

It is related by eye-witnesses that Mr. Heyburn has been known to eat five plates of soup, four dozen oysters, three porterhouse steaks, a half gallon of ice-cream and two pies at a single sitting, and that, too, after midnight, to say nothing of the vegetables and other "fillings" that go with such a meal. His girth is more than 60 inches; his chest measurement is about the same.

There is no chair in the senate chamber that Mr. Heyburn can sit in, and Sergeant-at-Arms Ransdell will soon be called upon to have the special chair now occupied by Senator Mason, of Illinois, enlarged to conform to the more amply availed-upon of the gentleman from Idaho.

Mr. Ankeny is known as the Russell Sage of the Pacific coast. He commands more ready cash than any other capitalist in that region. He is the chief stockholder in more than 20 banks scattered throughout Washington, Idaho and Oregon, and in 48 hours could mass $3,000,000 in any of these banks to his own credit.

THE WASHINGTON

GOVERNOR GARVIN.

Rhode Island's Chief Executive Is Mr. Bryan's Choice for the Presidential Nomination.

Dr. Lucius F. C. Garvin, governor of Rhode Island, who has been suggested by Mr. Bryan as good democratic presidential timber, was the only democrat candidate to be elected governor last fall north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi. He is extremely popular in his state, and in the course of 26 years, during which he has been more or less in politics, he has served in the legislature many times when he was about the only democrat in that body.

Dr. Garvin is a single tax apostle, an aggressive friend of organized labor and a democrat of the southern school. He was born in Tennessee 62 years ago, served through the civil war in the Fifty-first Massachusetts volunteers, and has accumulated a comfortable fortune as a practitioner of medicine. He was defeated once for governor and twice for congress.

PHILIPPINE DWARFS.

They Are a Curious Pair and Their Combined Height Does Not Exceed 40 Inches.

Out in the Philippines a curious pair of dwarfs have been found whose combined height is something less than 40 inches. These little persons have attained their full growth, and but for the size of their heads are perfectly proportioned.

The woman is 20 years old and towers to a height of 19 inches. The other member of this remarkable combination, who is her brother, is 20 years old. The man wears a 7½ hat.

The pair were born in the Island of Panay, and since their earliest childhood, says the New York Herald, have earned a very comfortable income by exhibiting themselves in the theaters and museums throughout the Philippine islands. They are decidedly accomplished in their way. They can both sing and dance acceptably, and give several "turns," which are highly appreciated by the Filipino audiences.

THE ACRE DISPUTE.

South American Squabble to Be Settled by Arbitration, at the Request of Bolivia.

Brazil demanded some months ago that Bolivia rescind its contracts with the rubber syndicate, a New Jersey corporation, to which it had granted financial, industrial and police control of Acre. The contract, Brazil declared, was beyond the power of the Bolivian government to make, as it involved the partial surrender of sovereignty, and was void because it disposed of territory part of which was claimed by Peru, and part by Brazil.

NEW VIEW OF CUPID.

Capricious Sprite of Love as a Recruiting Officer.

He Helps to Keep Up the Quota of Soldiers in All Countries Where General Conscription Is Not in Vogue.

Love is the greatest recruiting officer the army of any nation ever had. That is in time of peace. In times of war it may be admitted that patriotism draws the men into the ranks. But in the piping times of peace it is Cupid who enlists the men.

When the war clouds get big on the horizon a brass band and a few patriotic speeches will keep the sergeants busy writing down the attainments of the men who wish to enter the service. When the international sky is unclouded it is Cupid who plays the band and brings in the recruits.

That is what the recruiting officers say. It is well known that the young women cannot resist the effect of brass buttons and blue cloth.

Cupid works both ways in doing his duty as a recruiting officer. He enlists a man to win the girl or he enlists the man because the girl cannot be won. He gets the young fellow who wants to be successful, and he gets the young fellow who has failed.

The one wants to get the added attraction of the uniform, and the other wants to run his head against a bullet and make the girl feel sorry.

Not long ago a young man from down the state came to Chicago to enlist. He had been employed in a restaurant in a small town. He also had fallen in love with a girl who gave him the cold shoulder, and declared that she never could marry a waiter. That, says the Chicago Tribune, settled the restaurant job for the young man. He could not be a millionaire and own automobiles and yachts all at once. There were few things into which he could transform himself all at once. But the army was open.

He came to Chicago and enlisted. Afterwards he went back to the small town in his uniform and the girl capitulated at first sight. They became engaged, but the young man, having got the uniform, had to make the best of the obligations which went with it. He was ordered back to his regiment and was sent out west. He served there for some time, and finally got a furlough to visit his home.

He intended to make it a wedding trip when he returned, but he found the young woman had been faithless. She had married the man who succeeded him in the restaurant job. Most of such affairs turn out better for the soldier.

Jilted lovers often find refuge from their woes in the army. Sometimes young men of wealth and social position have been driven into the ranks by a love affair. There are a number of such cases in actual life, and the playwrights and novelists have found many more.

An English recruiting officer tells a story of one such occurrence as follows:

"Only a few months ago a fine, handsome young man came to me, looking dejected and saying that he was sick of life, and wanted to enlist. The reason for his dejection was clear enough when he confided to me that he had proposed to a girl whom he loved passionately, and she had refused him.

"I could see that the boy—for he was little more—was gentleman, and of a different stamp from the average Tommy, but that was no business of mine, and of course I enlisted him. But he was not destined to be a soldier; for a few weeks later, as I learned, a carriage drove up to the barracks containing a middle-aged lady and a pretty girl, who were none other than my recruit's mother and the young lady who had rejected him, and he was driven away in triumph, looking the picture of happiness."

NEW PNEUMONIA CURE.

It Was Discovered by an Indian Tending a Sick Man in the Woods of Maine.

Ernest Southworth and James Rice, prospectors for Bangor lumbermen, have just had a series of misadventures in the forests beyond Lobster Lake, Maine. Their ill luck came to a head when, after being caught in a severe snowstorm, they reached an abandoned camp.

There, says the New York Sun, Rice fell ill with a cold which developed symptoms of pneumonia. His companion, believing that he would die unless help came at once, set out for the nearest lumber camp, leaving a note torn from his survey book to tell where he had gone.

Three days later, when Southworth returned with a horse and sled to remove the sick man, he found Rice able to sit up. Rice said he owed his life to some medicine which Southworth had left for him, and which the Indian had administered faithfully.

"But I was greatly worried about you," said Rice, "because you left no word about your going away."

"Socksalexis," said Southworth, in his sternest tone, "what did you do with that paper I gave you and told you to hand to Mr. Rice as soon as he came to himself and was able to read?"

The Indian scratched his head as if struggling with a new idea. In the end he grasped the meaning of the question and replied:

"Heem paper? Oh, ou! Ah'm bin know w'at you bin mean. Ah'm bin tear ze paper oop an' geev heem to ze seek mans ez ze medicine w'at you bin tole ter geee. Eet mak' heem geet well pretty kweek, heem all good now. Ze paper medicine, heem do eet."

Instead of giving the note to Rice to read, the Indian had torn it to bits and administered it as medicine, thus adding a new remedy for pneumonia to the American pharmacopeia.

REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Boy Rescued from Drowning in a Well by Laving Rope Formed by Railroad Men.

James Roper, an 11-year-old boy, of Utica, N. Y., had a remarkable escape from drowning in an old, abandoned well. He was rescued from his perilous position by George Arnold and other railroad men who were employed near by.

Young Roper, accompanied by two boys, was at play on the Mohawk flats, north of the railroad tracks. The well was built by the railroad company some years ago for the purpose of furnishing water to some of the departments of the road. It was about 30 feet deep, and it was filled with about 25 feet of water. A coating of snow and ice had formed over the mouth of the well, and its existence was not noticed by the boys until young Roper got upon it. The ice cracked, and he was precipitated into the water.

Young Way at once began to shout. He ran to the Central-Hudson yards and notified some men who were working there. They returned to the well and found Roper in the water hanging onto an old limb which had fallen into the well. There were no ropes or poles at hand, and the railroad men were compelled to make a human rope. Arnold volunteered to go into the well after the boy. The other railroad men grabbed him by the heels, and they lowered Arnold until he was able to reach Roper, and after a firm hold was secured Arnold and the boy were pulled out.

REACHING A CLIMAX.

Timid Suitors Resort to Original Ways of Asking "Her."

By Reading This Article Other Lovers of a Bashful Disposition Might Get a Hint for Their Own Private Use.

It was a country squire who, after long, interminable, uneventful months of "sitting out" long, interminable, uneventful winter and summer evenings with his sweetheart, suddenly extended toward her the key of his newly erected house. "Jennie," said he, abruptly, "how'd you like to be mistress of that?"

Another determined if bashful country lover proposed marriage to his blushing but by no means surprised inamorato by inviting her to look over the new house that he, too, had just built. "So you've made the house all ready for the bride you mean to bring to it some day, William," the aforementioned inamorato delighted, the man who had carefully led up to this desirable climax by remarking: "and when will you begin to get ready for her?" "That," was the timid but hopeful answer, "is just as you say."

Still another rural devotee of St. Valentine found the beloved one disgruntled working her way through the heaped-up family mending basket. "No, I don't like mending!" she snapped in, in response to his hesitating effort at "making conversation."

"I'm sick to death of it, that is. It's no fun to do all the mending for a large family week after week for a number of years. Sometimes I think I'd give anything for a change!" The rural lover was quick to see and seize upon his long sought opportunity, but not, perhaps, fortunate in his manner of attempting to meet and live up to it.

"Priscilla," he jerkily assured her, drawing away the obnoxious mending the better to attract her attention. "Priscilla, if you'll—if you'll—make one of my family, you—you never need darn anybody's stockings but mine!"

Rida, if you show a spirit of dependence you will not retain the respect of your escort. No young girl should follow a young man any privilege, neither should she let him know that she is in need of his company.

E. M. You should not forget your friends. It is the positive and sedate girl that commands respect.

Ida, you should read more and be careful how you express yourself. A girl must be educated now. Beauty will not carry you through life, it fades like a rose."

J. Deception is soon found out. You will regret it some day, when you think you are deceiving others you are deceiving yourself. If you are true to your self you will be true to others.

E. Music is an accomplishment that no young lady should be without. She should be able to do other things as well.

A. You should never make promises that you have no idea of keeping. You should know your own mind. You talk too much and tell too much of your business.

Ida, you should not be so careless with your English. May be you will be able to connect the evil some day.

L. S. You should be one thing or nothing. You cannot have the same mind and appreciation.

Isadore, perhaps if you were not so selfish, you would be better understood.

Miss Estel, Black is becoming. You will win admiration by the sedateness and your friendly spirit.

Roda, don't be too fast in receiving introduction to strangers. You ought to know the result.

Ida, the noblest woman in the world is one who is satisfied with small things. Be careful what you accept from a stranger and sometimes your friends, Tillie.

The best housekeepers are the girls who are not ashamed of work. No young lady can hope to keep a husband who cannot keep a house.

Kate, don't allow yourself to be carried away with dress. It is the ruin of any young girl. Dress does not always make the lady.

Mabel, late dances are vulgar and ill timed. From six to ten is long enough for fashionable people.

Bessie, if you know what you are doing, do it right. Do not be hasty, you have time to find him out.

Too much familiarity will lessen a man's respect for you.

Smoking in your company should not be permitted.

Loud laughing in a street car is vulgar.

Don't tell all you know to appear wise. You convince who previously had a good opinion of you, that you have lost something.

Tight shoes are dangerous to the feet.

A flashy dress will not become a lady.

Nellie, do not practice deception with your friend.

Do not allow others to talk about your companion.

Be a good listener always, you may learn something.

Do not tell your neighbor that you do not work. It shows that you are a lazy girl.

Speak well of every one you do not know to whom you are talking.

Do not tell stories to your friends or those who have confidence in you.

If you appreciate true friendship endeavor to keep it.

The loss of a good friend is the same as the loss of a good true.

True friendship is a gem.

It is a keep.

Momentary friendship does not last.

So people admire your dress an such admiration is not

OLD OREGON FORT.

Monument of the State's Pioneer History to Be Preserved by Legislative Action.

Representative Galloway, of Yamhill, says the Portland Oregonian, is anxious to save to posterity, as nearly intact as possible, the old Fort Yamhill blockhouse, which has been the scene of many interesting events in Oregon's history. The blockhouse, which was once the fort proper, was removed some years ago to the Grand Ronde agency, and for a time the lower story was converted into a jail, and the upper story into a band hall. Unless the building is cared for, the entire structure will soon be in ruins.

JAPAN'S NEW PREMIER.

Gen. Count Katsura, Ito's Successor, is the Ideal of the Conservative Party.

That there is a reaction in Japan from the progressive energy which has characterized the nation for the past 30 years, is proven by the fact that Marquis Ito, the Bismarck of the orient, has been succeeded as prime minister by Gen. Count Katsura, a member of the conservative party. The new prime minister, however, has always taken a large part in the affairs of his country, and has won distinction as a diplomat and a soldier, if not as an originator of progress.

To Marquis Ito more than to any one man or to any score of men, is due the position that Japan now holds among the nations of the earth. In 1881 he drew the constitution which brought Japan from the ranks of oriental barbarism into the van of modern nations. Since that time he has been prime minister, with a few short intermissions. In the great war with China the venerable marquis was commander of the imperial fleet which destroyed the Chinese squadron off the Yalu river and practically ended hostilities. He has always stood for modern ideas, in education as well as in armament, and while he has ruled at times with an iron hand, he has devoted all his energy to the advancement of his country and not to personal aggrandizement.

Lye is an Unsafe Drink.

SNAPSHOT OF GHOST.

Ohio Doctor Says He Has Photograph of an Apparition.

Chastity Midnight Visitor Broke Up Pretty Honeymoon by Rappings, Groans and Other Strange Doings.

According to a Bucyrus (O.) correspondent of the New York World, the northern part of Crawford county is trying to solve a mystery which surrounds a little cottage on the farm of Horace Burger. The cottage, which was built as a bridal present to his daughter by Mr. Burger, is small but comfortable. It is only 50 feet from one of the most traveled roads in the county, with a pretty grove of native forest trees at the rear. In this wood, before the house was built, a wandering workman named J. G. Klinghardt took his life by hanging himself.

After their wedding the young couple took up their residence under most auspicious circumstances. A week had not passed when their nights were disturbed by strange tappings on the windows and at the doors. Moans and groans came from nowhere in particular. Later on the figure of the suicide could be plainly seen about the house and woods, and though the windows and doors were securely fastened he would enter the house and wander aimlessly from room to room, his coming being heralded by a dim phosphorescent light, a damp draught, and weary, sighing groans.

The young couple supposed at first that some of their friends were making them the target of a practical joke, but two weeks of such a honeymoon convinced them that life at the old family home, amid friends, would be more congenial, and they gave over the cottage to the ghost.

Burger volunteered to prove the falsity of their story, and the next night went to sleep in the cottage. He was awakened suddenly about midnight by a cold breath, and sitting bold upright, he saw the well-known form of Klinghardt wandering about the room. Burger threw a stick of wood at the apparition. Though his aim was true, the young couple supposed at first that some of their friends were making them the target of a practical joke, but two weeks of such a honeymoon convinced them that life at the old family home, amid friends, would be more congenial, and they gave over the cottage to the ghost.

The young couple supposed at first that some of their friends were making them the target of a practical joke, but two weeks of such a honeymoon convinced them that life at the old family home, amid friends, would be more congenial, and they gave over the cottage to the ghost.

After their wedding the young couple took up their residence under most auspicious circumstances. A week had not passed when their nights were disturbed by strange tappings on the windows and at the doors. Moans and groans came from nowhere in particular. Later on the figure of the suicide could be plainly seen about the house and woods, and though the windows and doors were securely fastened he would enter the house and wander aimlessly from room to room, his coming being heralded by a dim phosphorescent light, a damp draught, and weary, sighing groans.

Our Reason.

Mr. Louis T. Jacobs, of San Francisco, Cal., writes to The Bee this week states that it failed to give its reasons why Senator Hanna ought to be nominated. The Bee's reasons in a nutshell why Senator Hanna will be nominated are: He is a safe man, and will do what he promises, the country has confidence in his business qualifications, he makes no grand stand plays; he will carry out McKinley's policy; he is sound on the money question and he will be president of all the people. Senator Hanna will be nominated beyond any doubt. The writer is inclined to agree with the Bee that Senator Hanna is the best man.

NEW JOB FOR STANLEY.

Ex-Governor of Kansas Appointed a Member of the Dawes Indian Commission.

Ex-Gov. W. E. Stanley, who has accepted a place on the Dawes Indian commission, came to Kansas from Harrison county, Ohio, in 1870, and was the third governor Kansas has had from that state. He lived in Jefferson county until 1872, when he moved to Wichita.

While Gov. Stanley has never been in the complete sense a politician, he has always taken an active part in public affairs. He has never been defeated for office.

During his brief residence in Jefferson county as a young lawyer he served as county attorney and also served in Sedgewick county three terms in this same capacity.

Gov. Stanley is rated as the leading member of his in the section of the state, and his practice has been one of the largest in the state. He is 57 years of age.

A Genuine "Short Line." The shortest railroad in Missouri runs from Rock Port to Langdon, a distance of eight miles. It has only one locomotive and the patrons of the road disparagingly speak of it as "the peanut roaster."

Wonderful Alpine Railway.

A wonderful mountain railway is being constructed at present in the Tyrol, and when completed next summer it will be the steepest line in the world. The railway, which will be two and a half kilometers in length, will join the village of Kaltern to the summit of the Col de Mendel at a height of 2,550 feet. This distance will be covered in exactly 27 minutes, while by road it takes four hours to reach the top. The force is electricity, and the cog (middle) rail system has been employed. The maximum grade is 64 in 100, surpassing that of the Stanserhorn line, which formerly held the European record. The coaches will hold 50 persons and baggage, and special precautions have been taken to enable the tourist to view the wonderful scenery through which the line passes. M. Strub, a Swiss engineer of Clarenz, is carrying on this remarkable enterprise.

Trouble in Hundley Home.

To cure his wife and daughter of snuff-dipping, James Hundley, of Danville, Va., put red pepper in their snuff. In retaliation they put the snuff and pepper mixture in Hundley's whisky, thus spoiling two gallons of the exhilarating beverage.

Babies Never Get SICK.

As babies are accustomed to rocking, they are not disturbed by the rocking of a ship, and therefore never become sick.

Bloomers Are Prohibited.

Gov. Thompson B. Ferguson, of Oklahoma, has forbidden all girls who attend the territorial educational institutions the privilege of wearing bloomers while playing basket ball. The reason for this, it is said, is that a scandal was narrowly averted recently because some young women of a certain school played a game of basket ball in bloomers. The governor is emphatic in his denunciation of the garb and says the girls are subjected to ridicule on account of the bifurcated apparel. He said he had notified the heads of all territorial schools that there should be no more basket ball playing by Oklahoma girls in bloomers.
